FOCUS ON

The Office of Medical Services

TO YOUR HEALTH / 17

The Office of Medical Services not only treats employees but evaluates their fitness for duty. Balancing those roles is a tricky business.
By Shawn Zeller

DOES STATE DISCRIMINATE AGAINST PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES? / 27

When the medical clearance process intersects with personnel policies, the results can be unhealthy.
By Carol Shuh

A UNIQUE PRACTICE / 33

Practicing medicine in the Foreign Service is akin to working in a small town — a very small town.
By Judie Pruett

FEATURE

PAKISTAN: WASHINGTON'S BLIND SPOT IN AFGHANISTAN / 36

By ignoring core issues and realities in South Asia, U.S. policy in Afghanistan inadvertently contributes to the very instability that leaders in Washington seek to forestall.
By Malou Innocent

FS HERITAGE

AMERICA'S FIRST AMBASSADOR TO ISRAEL:

JAMES G. McDONALD / 43

Meet an ambassador who spent the years before his appointment publicly denouncing the policies of the administration that sent him.

Where Leaders Excel.

Powerful academics. International outreach. Lifelong success.

St. Mary's University's Bill Greehey School of Business prepares future leaders with prestigious academics and world-wide study-abroad and exchange programs.

Just ask the hundreds of St. Mary's graduates with careers in the military, U.S. Foreign Service, and public office.

The Greehey Scholars program provides four-year full scholarships and the chance to travel the world, visit leading organizations, and learn first-hand from business executives.

Located in San Antonio, Texas, St. Mary's University is where future leaders take their first steps to success.
