

Yeah, yeah, yeah
A Lennonesque guitar: Swag
for Grammy nominees p80

Opening Remarks

7

A plunge in the global food supply and rise in prices raise unsettling questions: Can mankind feed itself? Can rich nations forgo profits? And will climate change ever be addressed head-on?

Global Economics

11

How Berlusconi hangs on
Loyal followers, a powerful Finance Minister, and the lack of alternatives may keep him in office

- Egypt's army-of-all-trades p12
- Tyrants, beware the Swiss p13
- A Fed team's hunt for risk p14
- Hong Kong's gambling war p16
- Tom Keene's EconoChat p16
- Charlie Rose talks with Shady El Ghazaly Harb p18

Companies & Industries

21

Corolla in a tight spot
Toyota's compact is the best-selling car ever, but rivals have wow factors it's not close to matching

- Asos cozies up to Facebook p22
- Indian tycoon Anil Ambani takes a tumble p23
- Ryan Kavanaugh builds a 21st century movie studio p24
- Speed Dial: Starwood CEO Frits van Paasschen p25
- Briefs p26

I'm still here
Berlusconi's survival tactics p11

Politics & Policy

28

So wide the fiscal divide
The sparring over the budget reveals how broad the gulf is between the parties' economic visions

- Tea Partiers' cash capers p31
- Will Wall Street fill the void as Fannie and Freddie fade? p32
- Where Obama's wireless broadband plan falls short p33
- Eight states' Medicaid cuts p33

Technology

37

Clash of the platforms
Nokia discards its Symbian system, and the five-way mobile dominance war gets more interesting

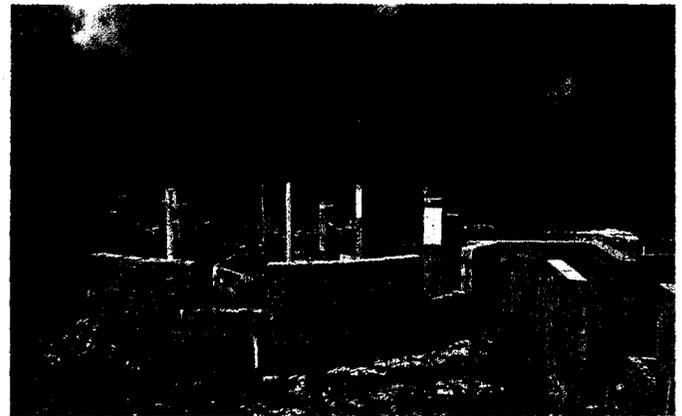

- Twitter knockoff Sina Weibo is on fire in China p39
- Instapaper, a TiVo for words, tries to prop up Old Media p40
- As the rest of Asia rolls out 4G, India finally makes it to 3G p42
- Innovator: Adam Beguelin's video feed breakthrough p43

Markets & Finance

45

Jitters over a calm market
It's been such smooth sailing that many analysts believe a pullback is inevitable—and healthy

- A curious pattern at SAC Capital Advisors p46
- The NYSE: A visual history p46
- Adjustable-rate mortgages: The fallout may not be so bad p47
- Barclays Capital is becoming a powerhouse in M&A p49
- Bid & Ask: The week's deals p50

Ruins Construction—and alleged corruption—haunt Turks and Caicos

Features

52

I'll Have My Robots Talk to Your Robots

Telepresence—high-def conference rooms and robots that stand in for remote workers—could make the road warrior obsolete p52

The Operators

Private equity becomes a little less private as megafirm TPG lifts the veil, and makes a $48 billion bet it can beat the market p62

Caribbean Hangover

What happens when easy money builds a playground for the rich and the credit bubble suddenly bursts? p68

Etc.

77

Nothing Tastes as Good as Skinny Feels

As a liquid-only cleanse moves beyond L.A. and New York, Big Juice takes up more of the diet industry

- Hollywood Line up for your goodies, Oscar nominees: The swag bag is back p80
- Perks Analytics software company SAS has an adjacent country club, a lavish art collection and hotel, free snacks—and no layoffs since its founding in 1976 p82
- Next Life Colin Lee segues from accountant to world-class bel canto tenor p84
- One True Thing A cardigan that any dude's office chair would be proud to wear p85
- The Stack The Asylum is an up-close look at the rise and fall of the NYMEX oil futures market (and yes, drugs and prostitutes figure prominently) p86
- Hard Choices Newark Mayor Cory Booker has had many. Firing cops hurt the most p88