

Forbes

30

CHAMBERS CHALLENGED
DOES CISCO SYSTEMS HAVE A
JOHN CHAMBERS PROBLEM?

The Cisco chief executive tried to repeat its business success just as the world underwent a massive shift into consumer-dominant products.

BY QUENTIN HARDY

72

THE SURVIVOR
CLAY CHRISTENSEN'S STORY OF LIFE, DEATH AND MEDICINE

The Harvard innovation guru beat a heart attack, cancer and a stroke. Here, in his own words, is what he learned. For more on health care, turn to page 86.

AS TOLD TO DAVID WHELAN

94

THE RETURN OF THE KING
RICHARD PETTY'S NASCAR
TEAM—BACK TO RIDE AGAIN

His reemergence after a disastrous few years may bode well for the troubled sport itself. Plus: We value ten Nascar teams and rank the highest-paid drivers.

BY MONTE BURKE AND KURT BADENHAUSEN

11 | FACT & COMMENT // Steve Forbes

14 | CURRENT EVENTS // Paul Johnson

16 | CAPITAL FLOWS // Carl J. Schramm

FOCUS

18 | LARRY'S LONG REACH

Oracle Chief Larry Ellison takes another shot at Microsoft—through the back door.

BY VICTORIA BARRET

19 | TOO FAST, TOO FURIOUS?

Oh, no, a tech bubble again?

BY SCOTT DECARLO AND MICHAEL K. OZANIAN

20 | AMERICA'S SILLIEST TAXES

Good news if you were persecuted by the Ottoman Turkish Empire.

BY WILLIAM BALDWIN

20 | FACEBOOK'S DEATH PROBLEM

Even its members die. How to grieve online.

BY NICOLE PERLROTH

COVER PHOTOGRAPH BY EVAN KAFKA FOR FORBES

CHAMBERS: JOSHUA ROBERTS / BLOOMBERG

22 | BACK TO THE FUTURIST

An interview with Ray Kurzweil on IBM's Watson and living forever.
BY ANDY GREENBERG

24 | HUGH'S THE BOSS?

Playboy's Hugh Hefner got the mansion, but control is another thing.
BY JEFF BERCOVICI

24 | FORECLOSURES OF THE RICH AND FAMOUS

The well-off are walking away from their homes, too.
BY MORGAN BRENNAN

26 | WILD THING

Josh Fink, son of BlackRock's founder, goes his own way.
BY ROBERT LENZNER

28 | INNOVATION RULES // Rich Karlgaard

TECHNOLOGY

34 | SUPER CRUNCHERS

Palantir Technologies is a data mining firm out to save the world from evildoers. No joke.
BY OLIVER CHIANG

36 | A TWITTER TO INVEST IN

A microblog service in China called Weibo is growing swiftly.
You can buy stock in its parent.
BY GADY EPSTEIN

38 | THE TECH TRADE // Eric Savitz

40 | DATA DRIVEN: CROWDSOURCING THE CLICK

Trada is using the masses to open up a big market in search marketing.
BY MAUREEN FARRELL

INVESTING

44 | LOW RISK, HIGH REWARD

Stodgy stocks can offer better returns than highfliers. Really?
BY DANIEL FISHER

46 | TROUBLE SEEKER

Catalyst Value's David Miller is having a great run buying stocks that others shun.
BY CHRIS BARTH

50 | PROFITING FROM LOSSES

How to do it right.
BY WILLIAM BALDWIN

53 | THE FAMILY FORTUNE // Len Costa

54 | FIXED-INCOME WATCH // Richard Lehmann

55 | INTRINSIC VALUE // Whitney Tilson and John Heins

56 | PORTFOLIO STRATEGY // Ken Fisher

ENTREPRENEURS

60 | PAY TO PLAY

A firm called Lendio dishes advice on getting loans. Is it worth the price?
BY HELEN COSTER

64 | MARGIN MEDICINE

Robert Novich has a formula for struggling general practitioners: more fun.
BY MAUREEN FARRELL

66 | ASK AN EXPERT

Can you prevent burnout?
BY STEVEN BERGLAS

LIFE

68 | THE ROUGH LIFE

Our writer plays in a PGA Tour pro-am.
BY MONTE BURKE

71 | FRENCH QUARTER FESTIVAL

New Orleans' well-kept secret.
BY JOHN HENRY BARBEE

HEALTH CARE

86 | GRAND PLANS

Randal Kirk got rich in biotech. It could pale next to his latest project.
BY ROBERT LANGRETH AND MATTHEW HERPER

89 | OBAMACARE LIVES?

Don't assume you know how the Supreme Court will rule.
BY DANIEL FISHER

90 | WILL HEALTH COSTS BANKRUPT AMERICA?

A conversation exploring ways to slow spending.
BY FORBES STAFFERS AND CONTRIBUTORS

FEATURES

100 | HYUNDAI ROLLS ITS OWN

The Korean carmaker makes a $5 billion bet that Henry Ford had it right all along.
BY JOANN MULLER

102 | A CAR'S CRASH DIET

How Hyundai trimmed 128 pounds from its Sonata.
BY JOANN MULLER

104 | BACK FROM THE EDGE

Where George Gilder is investing now.
BY STEVE FORBES

112 | THOUGHTS

On the Business of Life